The University's educational outreach goes beyond enrolled students. NSS village camps give local residents sessions on ecosystems, sustainable agriculture and general education, as described under SDG 15, and the Women's Cell runs sensitization activity for the community, as described under SDG 5.

The Alumni Relations office holds regular events for graduates, including continued-learning and professional-development sessions, and Schools open seminars and workshops to the public from time to time. Schools and the NSS are encouraged to consider the needs of vulnerable or displaced groups in their area where an opportunity to engage arises.

The NSS village-camp session records, the Alumni Relations event calendar and attendance records and the school-hosted public seminar records are attached.
